

5,000 AT FAIR SEE GREAT FLORAL PARADE

Not Bigger but Better Than Ever Was the Display of Decorated Vehicles at the Ellenville Fair on Wednesday—Quarantine Law Enforced and No Children Admitted.

The Ulster County Fair at Ellenville came again into its pristine paragon from the hands of the native sons and daughters of Ulster on Wednesday, when the annual floral parade attracted a crowd of five thousand people—all adults—and most of them known in fair parlance as "paid admissions."

The floral parade was not bigger than ever, but it was better—so much better that the judges experienced more difficulty in determining prizes than ever before. The awards of the judges met the complete commendation of every spectator and again Ellenville took an important place among the fair towns of the state which have become famous for liberality of entertainment to the stranger within the fair ground gates.

Everyone Should Go Tomorrow.

The opening day always is marked by a comparatively light attendance and this year was no exception to the rule, but Wednesday's crowd was in every way satisfactory. Strict enforcement of the health ordinance adopted by the town of Wawarsing and the village of Ellenville regarding children under sixteen years of age accounted for a large falling off in the attendance which marks Floral Parade Day, but the fair managers and the health officials believe that their course of action in the final count will more than compensate them for the financial loss entailed by regulations which kept away not only children but naturally the adult members of families having children who otherwise would have been taken to the fair.

Horse racing today and tomorrow were scheduled as features which always prove attractive at the Ellenville fair, and a large attendance, especially from Kingston, is anticipated tomorrow, when the fair will be brought to a close. The attractions are all that anyone could wish, and if there is any adult in the crowd who did not avail himself or herself of the opportunity of attending Wednesday or today, they will have reason to regret their failure to attend at least on the closing day, when some of the best racing of the summer is expected to take place.

"Preparedness" Shown in Floral Parade.

That Ellenville is awake to the value of "preparedness" was disclosed by the Floral Parade on Wednesday. Some of the floats and the horse-drawn vehicles and the automobiles had required at least two weeks to prepare, and the amount of detail work on each of the vehicles that appeared could not be appreciated at a glance but required careful examination. This fact evidently was taken into consideration by the judges in awarding their prizes, as prizes went to the vehicles which displayed the greatest artistic skill, the evolution of which demanded many days of hard work.

Ellenville occupies a unique place among the fairs of the state because of its Floral Parade, which has become famous, and the monetary value of the prizes awarded in no case compensates for the expenditure required for decorations, but the pride of prize-winning and the general ensemble of the entire parade have acted, as they will continue to act, as an incentive to greater efforts year by year to please a crowd of sightseers from all parts of the country whose expectations have never yet failed to be realized.

Floats Were a Feature. The floats which annually attract so much attention were not behind the high standards of previous years, and the excellence of the society floats caused such a large amount of discussion among the judges that each float was awarded a special prize ribbon.

The judges were Mrs. Rachel Horton of New York City, Miss Nell K. McElhone of Ellenville and David Burgevin of this city, all of whom have acquired the art of gentle discrimination by past satisfactory experience in similar work at the same fair.

The Society Floats.

The society floats, all of which received special prizes, were as follows:

"The Dragon" float, entered by Anita Deyo, represented a huge dragon, with green head and tail, the dragon resting on a platform of white, covered with daisies. Seated within the body of the dragon was Miss Ruth Abel, whose costume corresponded with the general color tone and decorative scheme of the float. This float in artistic effect and detail of workmanship was one of the best floats that has been shown in any Floral Parade in years and the judges in addition to the special prize ribbon awarded to each float offered for the best horse-drawn vehicle in line, the prize consisting of a cut-glass set of pitcher and six tumblers with silver-mounted French plate mirror base. The Ulster County Agricultural Society float represented a rural scene—a large, white-fleeced sheep, attended by Miss Dorothy Vernon as shepherdess. Four columns at either corner of the float were surmounted by huge pots of pink roses, and connected with floral chains of white and pink roses. The float was driven by Miss Ella DeVany.

The Ellenville Board of Trade float represented Cleopatra in her imperial barge with Mark Antony at her feet. The barge was of white, with chains of purple flowers draping the sides and festooned over the canopy surmounting the royal seat. Miss Norma DeVany enacted the role of Cleopatra and Mr. Decker took the part of the Roman.

The Eastern Star float represented a chapter room in white, with a red rose trimmed arch from which was suspended a large golden star. Mrs. White occupied the seat of honor.

"The Queen's Daughter" float, entered by Mrs. J. G. Gillman, was an attractive creation in yellow, of shell-like construction, ornamented with yellow flowers.

Applause for the old Veterans.

Ward Post, G. A. R., of Ellenville, won first prize for the National Colors float, with its large float of red, white and blue, filled with uniformed members of the Post. When the blue ribbon was presented by the judges, the veterans arose from their seats and gave three cheers or the Agricultural Society, to which prompt response was made by the crowd which gave three cheers, just as hearty, for "the old vets."

The Indian float, entered by Mrs. Byron Storms, presented an aboriginal scene of wildness, rushes and trees slightly parted showing in their midst a canoe in which an Indian maiden was seated. This float was awarded a special prize.

Business Men's Floats.

The Ellenville "Banks" entered a float, which was given first prize for the Business Men's Floats. Surrounded by pine trees was a rock ten feet long and six feet high bearing the legend: "Solid as a Rock. Combined Assets Three Million Dollars." The entire float and even the horses which drew it had a substantial appearance entirely in keeping with the well-known strength of the Ellenville banks and the float was one of the most practical examples of modern advertising that could be designed.

Special prizes were awarded to Armour & Company, whose sign surmounted a white background trimmed with maple brilliantly-hued maple leaves, and also to the Griswold Farm Dairy, one of whose large white and cream-colored delivery wagons was tastefully decorated with yellow and white roses.

The Marshall House was awarded first prize for Summer Boarding House floats, its large float representing a drawing room, decorated with red and white, with six white-gowned women seated around a table.

Other Horse-Drawn Vehicles.

Three contestants caused the judges some difficulty in awarding the prize for the best decorated one-horse one-seat vehicle, the first prize being awarded to Mrs. E. B. Kemble, whose carriage was decorated with black and white; second prize to Mrs. H. W. Sullivan, whose carriage was also decorated with black and white; and a special prize to Mrs. Clara McKittrick of Wurtsboro, whose carriage presented a fine appearance with decorations of white and pink.

Henry Brodhead won first prize for the best decorated two-horse two-seat vehicle, his carriage and horses presenting a magnificent appearance with their decorations of red poppies, red and green leaves.

Mrs. F. C. Lapott won a special prize for the best decorated two-horse one seat vehicle, the carriage being a magnificent mass of pink chrysanthemums which entirely hid the wagon-body and wheel-spokes.

Miss Gladys McDowell won first prize for the best decorated pony and phaeton, the decorations being black and white. Thea Leopold, first prize for the best decorated one-horse vehicle with national colors; Bernice Gaskell for one-horse pony cart.

Dr. Woodland Has Tally-Ho.

Dr. William E. Woodland won first prize for tally-ho coach his coach being decorated with white roses resting against a cream and green background, and drawn by four black horses. Seated with Dr. Woodland on the driver's seat was Miss Zimmerman, a well known New York actress, and other guests of the doctor occupied the remaining seats in side and on top of the coach.

Motor Car Prizes.

A special prize for the best decorated motor vehicle, consisting of a cut glass set of similar to that awarded for the best horse-drawn vehicle, was awarded to Miss Frances L. Cote. (Continued on Last Page.)

ROOKIES' ABOARD THE U.S.S. MAINE.

FOR ONE MONTH THEY WILL BE REAL "JACKIES." (Civilian "Rookies" Standing On One of the Big Guns Aboard the Maine.)

New York, August 17.—For one month, more than 2,000 young civilians will lead the life of real U. S. sailors aboard battleships sailing from several ports. Nine hundred young men, many of them still in college, are sailing on the Maine, New Jersey and Kentucky from New York, on the first practice cruise for civilian naval rookies. This is the "Plattsburg" idea extended to the navy.

Naval officers consider the cruise as an experiment of great importance. In addition to the training which the men will receive, the new interest which the cruise will arouse in naval service is counted on to have good results. The training schedule calls for instruction in small arms, drills, engine room duty, the firing of twelve-inch guns and the fire control system. In contrast to these duties the men will be required to scrub decks, polish brass and perform other work in the general care of the ships.

HIGHWAYMEN ROB MILTON YOUNG MAN

George Connelly, 17 years old, whose father is a fruit grower at Milton, was held up and robbed of $309 belonging to H. Benner & Company, produce merchants of Wallabout Market, Brooklyn, at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon while on his way to the branch office of the Franklin Trust Company at Flushing and Washington avenues, Brooklyn.

Connelly started for the bank shortly before three o'clock Tuesday afternoon to deposit $309 in cash and $150 in checks. While walking through Washington avenue near Park avenue, he was encountered by a thickset man wearing a gray suit and straw hat who asked whether he was employed by Benner. On answering in the affirmative he was asked to step into a big closed automobile which was standing at the curb. When he hesitated the stranger seized him by the arm and before he could object he was hauled inside the car which immediately started. He struggled to free himself but was overpowered, choked and beaten until he became unconscious. When he came to his senses later, he says, he looked out of the window and saw the car was passing along a country road in a section which was unfamiliar to him. He renewed his struggle, whereupon one of the highwaymen pulled a revolver and aimed it at his head. Connelly threw up his right hand and as he did so the highwayman fired, the bullet passing through his hand. The other man then got out of the car and Connelly fled.

The next that Connelly remembered was when he was sitting on the curbstone in front of the Marine Hospital, at Flushing avenue and River street, more than twelve hours after he had left his office for the bank. He staggered into the hospital and begged medical attention for the bruises on his head and the gunshot wound in his right hand. He was given temporary treatment and later transferred to the Cumberland Street Hospital, where it is said he will recover. The police found the ten checks in his pockets but the currency was missing. The police also found in his pockets three .22 calibre revolver cartridges for which he could not account.

Connelly is a medical student. Three months ago his father sent him to Brooklyn and secured the position for him with the Benner Company. He has been boarding with Mrs. John L. Arensburg at No. 276 East Thirtieth street, who says he is a model young man in every respect. He has the full confidence of his employers.

Birmingham Fears Car Strike.

Birmingham, Ala., Aug. 17.—Encouraged by the success of the street car workers in their strike in New York, the local street car men have organized and will soon present demands to the company. National organizers announced that 100 per cent. of the street railway men have joined. This may mean that Birmingham will face a strike of street car men soon. It is understood that they will demand recognition of the union, an increase of wages and a day's pay for every day a man reports at the bars, whether there is work for him or not.

Small Fire on Abbot Street.

Fire thought to have started by sparks from a passing locomotive burned a few shingles in the roof of D. H. Zoller's coal shed at 537 Abbot street this morning shortly after 10 o'clock. An alarm was turned in from Box 35 and the chemical apparatus quickly extinguished the blaze.

HIGHLAND REPORTS ANOTHER CASE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, Aug. 17.—It has come to the attention of the state health department that in the city of Hudson, where there are many cases of infantile paralysis, the physicians have not been co-operating with the authorities and removing cases to the isolation hospitals. Prompt measures for having such cases as the health officer deems advisable removed from their homes have been taken.

The 27 new cases reported today make 1,160 outside Greater New York. No deaths were reported. It was noticeable that the spread of the disease today was through the Mohawk Valley. The cases reported were as follows: New Rochelle five; Mount Vernon two; Port Chester 1; Westchester county: Fonda, Montgomery county 2; Fairport, Monroe county 2; Parkville and Liberty, Sullivan county; Sullivan, Solville, Canastota, Madison county; Athens, Greene county; Beacon, Millbrook and East Fishkill, Dutchess county; Cadonia, East Branch and Highmount, Delaware county; Stottville, Columbia county; Highland, Ulster county, and Ulica, Oneida county.

The health department announced that good quarantines are being enforced in 46 communities of the state.

According to vital statistics of the department the death rate in the state outside Greater New York for the month of July was 56 per thousand. There were 592 deaths from infantile paralysis during July of which 779 were in New York city.

BIG BANQUET FOR COMPANY M BOYS

Some Time in September to be Set For Festive Event in Honor of Guardmen Who Responded to Calls—Old Guard and Depot Company Hosts.

Arrangements are to be made at a meeting this month of officers of the Old Guard and the Depot Company for a banquet to be tendered to the members of Company M in honor of their recent response to the colors and in celebration of their return from mobilization camp. The date for the affair will probably be fixed for the middle of September when the annual meeting of the Old Guard Association is held. The place will be the armory and upwards of 400 diners will probably participate.

A speaker of national prominence may be secured for the occasion but in any event a plentitude of after-dinner oratory is available and the menu will be as elaborate as possible. Members of the Old Guard intend to leave nothing undone that will in any way contribute to the success of this feast of welcome for the militiamen.

Yacht Returns Down Hudson.

The seventy foot gasoline cruiser Ethelma, which has been anchored in Rondout creek for the last three weeks while the owner and members of his family have been in the Catskills, left port this morning for New York. The craft is a big one and her lines indicated speed possibilities of which no local exhibition was given.

NEW EPIDEMIC IN POUGHKEEPSIE

A large number of cases of dysentery of a severe type have been reported in Poughkeepsie and have caused several deaths already. The disease is not considered infectious, and Dr. Sobel places the blame upon the milk supply of the city. Several days ago a milk station was closed and since then several of the families who had been accustomed to getting milk there, have changed their source of supply and as it is in these families that a number of the cases have been reported.

A dozen cases have occurred and have placed the families and friends of the afflicted in a peculiar situation. Mrs. Brodhead, of Hurley avenue, mother of Mrs. James Burke whose husband died of dysentery in Vassar Hospital, with the disease, has been unable to make her friends in Kingston believe that the disease is other than infantile paralysis. Two of the Harris children of Poughkeepsie, grandchildren of the Burkes, have died and a third is in Vassar Hospital afflicted with the trouble. The Poughkeepsie authorities do not regard the disease as infectious and contrary to the belief of a large number of people those afflicted are not suffering from infantile paralysis of which there are a large number of cases in Poughkeepsie.

Advices received here indicate that a number of the big railroad chieftains in anticipation of such a summons, are immediately available, some in New York and others at points within easy call of the White House. Secretary Tumulty said that an arrangement for them to see the president would be made just as soon as it was known what time they can reach this city.

In addition to President Willard, copies of the telegram were sent to the following other railroad executives:

Samuel Rea, Pennsylvania; A. H. Smith, New York Central and H. R. R. F. D. Underwood, Erie; William H. Trueblood, D. L. & W.; Howard Elliott, New Haven; H. Holden, C. B. & Q.; W. J. Harahan, S. A. L.; L. F. Loebe, D. & H. R. F. Bush, receiver Missouri Pacific; E. M. Calvin, Union Pacific; William S. Sproule, Southern Pacific; George W. Stevens, C. and O.; Samuel L. Felton, Chicago and Great Western, and Fairfax Harrison, Southern.

When word reached the brotherhood representatives that the president had called for the railway executives they seemed much relieved. President W. B. Lee, of the B. R. T., said that it would at least defer any break.

"We have been convinced all along," said Lee, "that if the railroad managers were permitted to maintain their present position and to be allowed to refuse all compromises that a break would have to come. We have been authorized to declare a strike but have held back trying to find a way out. We offered concessions but at no time have the railway managers even indicated a willingness to do anything. May be the president now will be able to settle all questions satisfactorily."

It is understood that a majority of the members of the brotherhood committee are willing if it is the best that can be secured, to accept the eight hour work day on the basis of the present ten hour day's pay, waiting the overtime proposition to be settled in some manner yet to be worked out. This is the question that will be put to them by the president this afternoon, together with his plan of what both sides should do to make the system operative.

The railway managers plainly were very seriously concerned over the action of the president in sending for the heads of the various railway systems to come to Washington. The peremptory tone of the telegram calling the chiefs here caused much bitter comment and privately some of the members declared that it bore out their views that there was "politics" in the entire situation. It was clear the president had been so enraged over the attitude of the managers, and especially over the statistics that they filed at the White House in his absence last night that he was determined to ignore them in all future negotiations. Administration officials admitted that the president was determined that responsibility for any strike should be placed on the men higher up both in the unions and the railroads. It is understood that President Willard has notified the White House that he and his associate president will be able to get here by tomorrow morning and arrangements are being made for a conference at the White House for the railroad heads at ten o'clock tomorrow morning.

Following the admission that the railway presidents had been called on a feeling was noticeable in official quarters that the eventual basis for settlement will be the 8-hour day at present rates of wages and collateral issues to be worked out through a plain of arbitration—probably, however, not under that name—especially laying stress on how the short work day is to be enforced so that roads will not violate it nor the men take advantage of it. Brotherhood leaders quietly admitted that they were convinced that if the president makes the same strong argument to the entire committee that he has to those who already have conferred with him, he will swing the majority into line for his plan.

RAILROAD PRESIDENTS SUMMONED BY WILSON

Asks for Personal Conference at Earliest Possible Moment—Will Probably Insist on Concessions That Have Been Refused by the Managers.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, August 17.—President Wilson today summoned to Washington all presidents of the railroads involved in the wage and hours of labor dispute with the Big Four Brotherhoods. He demands that they come to Washington at once.

By this telegram the president admits for the first time that he considers the situation so serious that the committee of railway managers now in this city cannot settle it. The telegram was sent to Daniel Willard of the Baltimore and Ohio, chairman of the Railway Presidents' Association. The telegram reads:

"Discussion of the matters involved in the threatened railway strike has reached a point which makes it highly desirable that I should personally confer with you at the earliest possible moment and with the presidents of any of the railroads affected who may be immediately accessible."

"Hope you can make it convenient to come to Washington at once."

"WOODROW WILSON."

After the telegram had been sent the president got into touch with President Willard on the long distance telephone and it is reported that he agreed to come here immediately. Other railroad presidents who now are in New York are expected to accompany him. As soon as they reach here a conference will be arranged in the White House.

Officials of administration declared that they believed that the president intended insisting on the railway presidents making concessions which so far the committee of managers have refused to consider. The president, it was reported, has been greatly dissatisfied with the attitude of the managers who have refused to make any concessions to aid him in his efforts to bring about a settlement of the strike. Their attitude, it was stated by White House officials, has been that their present revenues made it impossible for them to grant the demands of the men and that therefore they would not do so. Even when the president asked them to grant the eight hour work day for a limited period during which it would be possible to tell how it worked out and how expensive it would be, they refused. Last night they filed a long series of figures which they claimed proved conclusively that they were right in their financial contention. It was this which influenced the president, officials said, to go over their heads and demand that the responsible heads of the great railroad systems themselves come to Washington to confer.

Advices received here indicate that a number of the big railroad chieftains in anticipation of such a summons, are immediately available, some in New York and others at points within easy call of the White House. Following the admission that the railway presidents had been called on a feeling was noticeable in official quarters that the eventual basis for settlement will be the 8-hour day at present rates of wages and collateral issues to be worked out through a plain of arbitration—probably, however, not under that name—especially laying stress on how the short work day is to be enforced so that roads will not violate it nor the men take advantage of it. Brotherhood leaders quietly admitted that they were convinced that if the president makes the same strong argument to the entire committee that he has to those who already have conferred with him, he will swing the majority into line for his plan.

BREWERY 'PHONE 66 KINGSTON

LATIN NOT BEYOND PARIS PHONE GIRLS

By Telegram to The Freeman
Paris, Aug. 17.—That the telephone operators of Paris are well versed in foreign languages is a thing which many visitors to this city have found occasion to discover, but a most striking proof of their versatility is told by a Swedish Catholic priest now visiting here.

The priest, who does not speak a word of French, was received at the station by a French colleague who did not know Swedish, but who was to be his guide here, so the two priests arranged to carry on their conversation in Latin. The following morning the visitor who lives at a hotel was called up on the telephone by his colleague.

He had barely started speaking when he was interrupted by the operator, who told him that because of the war he must not use a foreign language. The French priest explained the circumstances to her and she assured him that matters might be arranged. In a moment the two priests heard a new young voice in the phone; addressing them in the most perfect Latin. What she said, translated into English, meant that although it was forbidden to use a foreign tongue the operator should be very pleased if the two fathers would speak in Latin and it would then be her duty to listen to their conversation.

The KITCHEN CABINET

Power to think for oneself, power to understand those one does not agree with—these two things are absolutely essential to peace, harmony, and co-operation in a self-educating and self-governing community.

REFRESHING DRINKS.

There are so many delicious things put up in bottles to lure us during the hot weather that when one may prepare something quite good at home at much less expense, we gladly welcome the suggestion.

Root Beer.—Dissolve three pounds of sugar in five gallons of water and add a bottle of root beer extract. Then add a cake of compressed yeast, dissolved in warm water and mix the whole well together. Put in bottles and expose to moderate heat in sun, or behind stove for six hours, then put in a cool place. After three days it will be ready to serve.

Orange or lemon beer may be made using the juice of a dozen lemons or oranges; less sugar will be needed with the oranges. Prepare as for root beer.

Mint Julep.—Take six sprigs of mint, one cupful of sugar, one gill of strawberry juice, four lemons, two cupfuls of cold water, one cupful of boiling water, one gill of raspberry juice and ice. Boil together the cold water and sugar for 20 minutes. Crush the mint and pour over it the boiling water. Allow it to stand for ten minutes, strain and pour into the sirup, add the fruit juices and serve.

Buttermilk Kumiss.—Mix one pint of buttermilk with two quarts of sweet milk and five lumps of sugar. Stir until the sugar is well dissolved, or better, pour from one pitcher into another for ten minutes. Cover with muslin and let stand in a warm place for 12 hours. Pour into pint bottles, tie down the corks and lay the bottles on their sides in a cool place. The drink will be ready in four days.

Cream Nectar.—Take two ounces of tartaric acid and one and a half pounds of lump sugar, dissolved in one and a quarter pints of boiling water. Dissolve over a slow fire. When cold beat in the white of an egg and two tablespoonfuls of lemon extract; bottle. When serving add a half wineglass of nectar, a saltspoonful of soda, and fill the tumbler three-fourths full of ice water.

MAY DIVIDE FLORIDA.

North and South Portions Disagree on Most Questions.

Orlando, Fla., Aug. 17.—Because of differences of climate and the character of the people between north and south Florida, agitation has been started to divide the state by a line running along the 29th parallel. Another suggested division line is the Suwanee river, some twenty-five miles north of the 29th parallel. The northern portion would contain about 27,000 square miles, a little larger than West Virginia and larger than Vermont, New Hampshire and New Jersey together. South of the 29th parallel there is something like 41,000 square miles, slightly more than Ohio and a little less than Tennessee.

It has been proposed to name the new state, the northern half of Florida, Jefferson, in honor of Thomas Jefferson, while the south half would retain the name of Florida.

The suggestion for the division of the state into two states was made as early as 1914, but the matter was dropped. Recently the state has been thrown into a turmoil over the selection of a Democratic candidate for governor. The northern part of the state is pulling in one direction and the other part in another. The northern part of the state is inclined to prohibition, while the southern part, with Key West and Tampa, would apparently prefer to retain the old order of things.

While no formal campaign has been launched looking to creating sentiment for a division of the state the prospects are that one will be under way before many months.

TAX FRANCHISES QUARTER MILLION

Tax Commission's Valuations on Kingston Public Service Corporation Shows Big Increase—Roundout Bridge New Item Under Recent Court Decision.

Franchise valuations as finally fixed by the state tax commission for Kingston public service corporations have been received by the city assessors and in almost every instance show an increase. One decrease is shown, this being a matter of $10,650 on the franchise of the Kingston and Ellenville Railroad Company, or Ontario and Western railroad.

The total valuation on the franchises now exercised in Kingston is $862,887, deducting the one decrease item, makes the net increase of approximately a quarter million dollars over last year, or $249,413.

The big increase is that in the West Shore bridge over the Rondout creek mentioned in these columns Wednesday which has been assessed for the first time by the state tax authorities under a decision of the courts by which bridges over navigable streams are treated the same as rights of way over public highways. The railroad assessment on franchises is thereby increased $147,300 over last year, the total assessment being $184,200.

These franchise valuations are final and are given by the state, as follows, the 1915 figures being taken from last year's list by way of comparison:

PRISON REFORM A VINDICATED IDEA

Attorney Harry H. Flemming Speaks on Crime and Its Penalties Before Rotary Club at Hotel Eichler—Stielow Case and Capital Punishment.

Before the Rotary Club at its monthly dinner Wednesday night at the Hotel Eichler Attorney Harry H. Flemming was the speaker and he discussed Criminal Reform in a manner most interesting to his hearers. The speaker's viewpoint is perhaps not that of the average lawyer, Mr. Flemming having become interested in prison reform measures through his membership on the Social Service Committee of the New York Conference of the M. E. Church. In part he said:

"Our subject for this evening is one that has received no little attention in the past few years, and is a live, interesting problem today.

"Having in mind that all punishment is first, in the interest of and for the protection of society, and second, for the reformation of the criminal, we all can recall quite distinctly the relation of prison life and the character of punishment meted out to the criminal in bygone years, for history does not fail to record the severe punishment for minor crimes or misdemeanors; and indeed, it is written in the Mosaic Law: 'An eye for an eye, tooth for a tooth, hand for a hand, a foot for a foot,' and this code prescribes the death penalty for drunkenness, adultery and many lesser crimes, from all of which it would seem that the second reason assigned for the punishment of crime, to wit, the reformation of the criminal, was well-nigh forgotten, but we must not forget that each particular generation demonstrated its need for punishment peculiar to and to meet the requirements of its day. The dungeons, the cruel, inhuman methods for the punishment of crimes of minor degree, have been relegated to past centuries. We have, however, retained some of the relics of ages past that remain as a blot upon our present-day civilization, conspicuous among which is capital punishment.

Collins and Osborne.

"Superintendent of Prisons, Cornelius V. Collins was the first official in this state to abolish the stripes and lock-step and with this action there dawned upon the horizon of the unfortunates a new day, with a brighter ray of hope than they had hardly the courage to look forward to a few years prior thereto. Later Warden Osborne, with his active interest in the criminal and all that pertains to his welfare, after some years of thoughtful study, became an aggressive agent in the interest of prison reform, and with his appointment as warden of Sing Sing we have the formation of the Mutual Welfare League. Some of our great newspapers in their comments upon the work and influence of the league, have written in a spirit of ridicule, and in so doing have done more to retard this really helpful movement than they could have done by direct opposition.

"Every work of this kind, whether within or without prison walls, has its percentage of failures in the subjects it is designed to help, and it is the failures that are heralded broadcast and receive the particular attention of the thoughtless, disinterested reader. If any of you gentlemen have had occasion to visit a prison of any size twenty, fifteen or even ten years back, you still retain very vivid pictures of the stripes, the lock-step, the sullen faces of the prisoners, the stern cruel face of the average guard, and you have left with a feeling akin to horror, with the determination that you will never again be found visiting similar institutions.

Sing Sing An Inspiration.

"After all this, we would, if we could, inspire you to a determination to visit Sing Sing of today, and note the marked change. True, the old block cells are there, not fit from a sanitary point of view or from another, to be a shelter for well-kept hogs. The cells of the condemned prisoners are there, and in close proximity the cold, barren looking room known as the death house, with the chair and necessary paraphernalia to strap the unfortunate in a position that will admit of the application of the electric current. Note, if you will, as you mingle with the prisoners, the expression of the various faces, and few you will find marked with the evidence of despair, and many where the fires of hope have been kindled anew: men who have resolved to pay the penalty for deeds past, and then go out and strive to meet and solve life's problems with a brighter, more wholesome outlook than has heretofore crossed their pathway.

Has Earned A Place.

"The Welfare League has already demonstrated its right to exist, and will, we are sure, not only merit but receive the active support of all right-thinking people who will give the necessary time and effort to investigate by a personal visit to the scene of its work.

"We could take a whole evening, if we had it to discuss the right and wrong of capital punishment from a moral, scriptural or any other point of view, and feel confident that among this body of men we could win recruits in favor of its abolition. I know that some of you have in mind what you term the bold scriptural injunction, 'Whoso sheddeth man's blood by man shall his blood be shed.' Others have construed this as a prophecy, and whatever construction you may contend for as pertaining to this passage, there are others equally as positive as 'Thou shalt not kill.' He who came to destroy but to fulfill the law said 'Ye have heard that it hath been said, an eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth, but I say unto you that ye resist not evil.' This marked the foundation of a new law the basis of which is 'service.'

"Having in mind the first and fundamental reason for punishment, the protection of society, is that end not fully provided for by life imprisonment?—withholding from the chief executive the right of pardon, and once having been entered upon no possibility of release save upon Jewish uncertainty evidence, submitted to the same tribunal that pronounced judgment, and then passed upon as where the facts that brought about conviction, this right to be exercised under proper restrictions, thus placing beyond peradventure of doubt the taking of life by the state of those who later are proved to be innocent of the crime for which they paid the penalty.

Stielow Case is Cited.

"All must admit that specific instances of this nature have occurred. A most interesting case is that of one Stielow, now occupying no little space in the public print, who, if, as many believe, is innocent, has had an experience of such a nature that the injury he has suffered will ever be with him, for on at least three occasions he was within the shadow of the chair, and on one occasion clothed for the last march from his cell through the green door to the room of death, and within an hour of the time set for his execution.

"The law of service is, as we understand it, one of the foundation stones of the structure reared under the name and style of The Rotary Club.

To Be A Light.

"All that has been said here this evening is of little avail unless it starts one or more members not alone to thinking along the line of our theme, but likewise to action. Are you interested in the unfortunate fellow found behind prison walls? If so, visit the prison when you have the opportunity, talk with the men there, advocate the reforms you believe necessary. If you believe in the abolition of capital punishment tell your senator and member of assembly in a way that will carry conviction, and keep pounding away. Some day the light you have seen will start the majority your way, and then will come the many and much needed reforms in prison life in New York."

Mr. Bush Must Behave.

An echo of the Sebastian Brown assault case was heard by Recorder Lang Wednesday night when the case of Charles Bush, one of the men interfering with Policeman Welsh when he arrested Brown, came up for disposition. Through his attorney, Chris Flanagan, Bush pleaded guilty to a disorderly conduct charge and was fined $25 in default of which he was sentenced to serve one day in jail for each dollar unpaid. Execution of the sentence was then suspended by the court for a period of six months pending good behavior.

Accepts Lexington Call.

The Rev. Benjamin Jay Bush, who up to three and one-half years ago was pastor of the Dutch Reformed Church of New Paltz, and since that time pastor of one of the largest churches in West Hoboken, N. J., has accepted the call to fill the pulpit of the Second Presbyterian Church of Lexington, Kentucky, and leaves early in September to assume his new duties.

$75,000,000.00 In Dividends

The automobile industry will pay seventy-five million dollars in dividends this year. The automobile industry is paying twice as much in dividends on its capitalization as the steel industry. Some automobile companies are paying from 100 per cent to 500 per cent per annum on the original investment. TEN years ago you could not buy a serviceable automobile for less than $2,000; five years ago your choice below $1,000 was limited and strictly limited. The motor car has become literally less costly than a pair of decent horses, at first price, and, of course, much less expense to maintain from all points of view. THE INDUSTRY has been democratized.

THE AUTOMOBILE DIVIDEND KING

A dozen years ago, at a time now referred to as THE OLD days of the automobile industry, Henry Ford and his associates formed the present Ford Motor Company with a cash capital of $28,000. Upon that meager beginning has been built a business which for rapid growth and tremendous dividends has never been equalled since the world began. Not a dollar of outside capital was ever put into the enterprise after the original investment of $28,000; yet so profitable is the automobile business and so wonderful the demand for a low-priced car that the company has built up a surplus of almost $50,000,000; has assets of more than $20,000,000 and cash in banks amounting to $27,000,000 after paying millions in dividends every year and donating millions of dollars in cash to its employees under a profit-sharing plan. The company recently declared a stock dividend of $48,000,000 divided among its seven stockholders.

The Remington Motors, Inc., would consider locating at Kingston, N. Y., and will open its plant here, adding thousands of dollars yearly to the trade channels of the city, if arrangements can be made. The name Remington is known the world over for QUALITY.

DOES KINGSTON WANT THIS MOTOR INDUSTRY TO LOCATE HERE?

THE PARAGON THEATRE

Will Absolutely Be Built!

Elbert Hubbard used to say that "Every kick is a boost if you get in the right direction."

Friend Hubbard lacked not for wisdom. Our enemies will tell you that we have no intention of building a Paragon Theater here. When he does that he is expressing his wish not his conviction. He fears that we will and his fears are not groundless.

The Paragon Theatre will absolutely be built. The plans are already in the making. Its construction is not contingent on any subscription by the local merchants.

We want your co-operation. We know we can give you the best in vaudeville, legitimate plays, musical comedies, concerts and photo-plays at a moderate price under the best conditions. If we did not know our ability to do so we would not put our time and money into such a project.

We invite you to participate with us in making this a success and to share in the profits.

But! we do not ask you to finance us nor threaten you if you don't. We will accept your subscription now but you do not pay one cent until after we have started the building.

Only a small amount of stock is for sale. The subscription is without obligation to purchase or without placing you in the "undesirable citizen" class.

CUT HAND BADLY ON MILK BOTTLE

Eddie Gaynor of 29 Henry street while helping deliver milk for the Kingston Creamery of Downs street this morning, met with a very painful accident when his left hand was badly cut on a broken bottle. Lew Pettit was substituting on Lawrence Gaynor's route and was being assisted by young Eddie Gaynor. While delivering milk on Foxhall avenue Eddie ran up on a porch and setting down a bottle with his right hand grasped the empty bottle with his left. The empty bottle had been broken and the splintered edges tore his hand severely. The boy was frightened and instead of seeking assistance turned and ran back to the creamery on Downs street. Charles Simmons, who was at work in the creamery, saw that the cut was very severe but before he could summon assistance Eddie had fainted. As soon as he revived he was hurried to a doctor and the wound dressed. Although the wound is not dangerous it is very painful and young Gaynor was weakened by a considerable loss of blood.

DESTROYERS DESTROYED.

Submarine Swatters Get Swatted, According to German Expert.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Berlin, August 17.—Commenting on the destruction of several British submarine destroyers by German U-boats a naval expert writes in the "Tag":

"The 'submarine swatters,' as the British call them, were furnished to England by American ship building firms in violation of international law. So far about twenty, or possibly a few more of them have been brought across the ocean on the decks of transatlantic steamers. The English admiralty expected great things of them, but they have turned out to be more or less of a failure.

"Thanks to the haste of the American builders in advertising this aid to England the German navy had minute descriptions of the 'swatters' before they went into action. The descriptions were published with drawings in different American technical magazines.

"The submarine destroyers are low, flat motor boats of the racing type. They are sixty feet long and ten feet wide, with less than three feet draught. Most of them have three motors of 200 to 220 horsepower each and their armament consists of machine guns and a small rapid fire cannon.

"As the 'swatters' are able to develop a speed of more than forty miles an hour and can easily hide behind merchant vessels they seem to be an excellent weapon against the submarines, but only in theory. Practically they have been a failure. Even in a moderately rough sea they cannot attain their maximum speed and in stormy weather they become useless. They make all kinds of grotesque jumps and as the waves roll over them constantly they are unable to fire with any accuracy. One shot from a submarine is enough to finish them.

"The boats require large quantities of benzine for their strong motors and for this reason their radius of action is limited. They can only be used near the coast and are no danger for the U-boats operating on the high seas."

THE MEMPHIS CODE.

"Carranza" Means Gin and "Villa" Means Whiskey.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Memphis, Tenn., Aug. 17.—"Villa or Carranza?"

If you answer the bootlegger by saying "Villa" you will get a half pint flask of whiskey. If you say "Carranza" you will get a half pint of gin.

TORREY'S SECOND MARRIAGE ANNULLED

Judge Hasbrouck has granted a final decree annulling the marriage of Florence Oakley Torrey to James V. Torrey, which was tried some time ago before Judge Rudd at Albany.

Torrey was twice married. His first married Sarah L. Crouse, but on September 27, 1915, he again married Florence Oakley, whom he met when he went to her home to buy pies. She did not know at that time that he was married already and was not aware of it until his first wife brought an action against him for divorce, which was granted. Then the second wife, who is a widow, brought an action through Addie Markle, her guardian ad litem, for an annulment of her marriage. Torrey did not defend either action. Judge N. Frank O'Reilly represented each wife in her suit.

STORY OF TWO BOYS.

Their Methods Were Different, and So Were the Results.

Two boys left home with just money enough to take them through college. They both did well at college, took their diplomas in due time and got from members of the faculty letters to a large shipbuilding firm with which they desired employment. When the first boy was given an audience with the head of the firm he presented his letters.

"What can you do?" asked the president.

"I should like some sort of a clerkship."

"Well, sir, I will take your name and address, and if we have anything of the kind I will write to you."

The other boy then presented himself and his papers.

"What can you do?" the president asked him.

"Anything that a green hand can do, sir," was the reply.

The president touched a bell that called a foreman, and the college graduate went to sorting scrap iron. A week passed, and the president, meeting the superintendent, asked, "How is the new man getting on?"

"Oh," said the superintendent, "he did his work so well that I put him over the gang."

In two years that young man was the head of a department and on the way to a salary larger probably than his friend will ever earn—Youth's Companion.

Why Children Like Candy.

Children like candy because of its properties of sugar, a food quickly absorbed by the human system. The purpose of all food is to supply the energy that is wasted by physical exertion. Some foods more than others contain the elements necessary to furnish this supply and vary in the time required to feel their benefits. Sugar is actually turned into real energy within a few minutes after it is eaten, and candy gives a quick supply of the energy called for by the activities of youth. Thus the constant need of energizing force by children leads them instinctively to crave candy.—Exchange.

Kedleston Hall.

Kedleston Hall is considered to be Robert Adams' masterpiece. Its scale of magnificence may be judged from the fact that one entire wing is taken up by the kitchen and its offices. The design of the garden front was copied from the arch of Constantine, and the drive through the park to the hall, a mile in length, is through some of the noblest forest scenery in England. It is said that when in 1761 the first Lord Scarsdale resolved on building Kedleston Hall as it now stands he removed the entire village to another spot to make room for his new mansion.—London Globe.

Largest Wild Rose.

The great briar rose, from upper Burma, which is the largest of the world's wild roses (Rosa gigantea) was discovered by the late Sir Henry Collett among the Shan hills, where it climbs over the tallest trees, from the tops of which the long, pendant branches send down profuse festoons of huge white flowers. It was introduced into England about thirty years ago.—London Mail.

A Last Resort.

Little Roy—I want you to write me an excuse for being late to school yesterday. Teacher: Excuse? You are not my son. Little Roy—No, but mamma says I had plenty of time to get to school, so I guess the clock you sold her doesn't go right.

Devil Worship in Tibet.

The religion inculcated by Buddha had certain cardinal points—the encouragement of the ascetic life, the maintenance of virtue, the exhortation to persons of all castes and both sexes to aim at deliverance from the evils of existence and, lastly, the attainment of Nirvana.

But in Tibet Buddhism has been grafted on to the earlier devil worship of the people, and a religion has been evolved better expressed as Lamaism, or modified devil worship, so that in addition to the Buddhas and Bodhisattas there have also come to be tutelary and guardian deities of a terrifying and malignant aspect, whose duty it is to defend the faith and the faithful people from external attack. These deities are depicted in grotesque and terrible forms in all the monasteries, generally in violently colored fresco paintings at the entrance.—National Geographic Magazine

Paste This on the Family Tool Chest.

The idea of this cabinet is to furnish amusement to the family when they have scratched up all the furniture and done all the damage elsewhere they can think of; therefore

Do not replace or put back anything that you take out of these drawers.

Try, if possible, to select and remove from this cabinet some article or tool that is absolutely indispensable, leaving it preferably out in the back yard.

If you have anything hanging about your room that is of no earthly use you might store it in one of these drawers.

Remember that the main idea of having this cabinet on the premises is gradually to fill it with utterly useless things.

And remove from it at the same time all the useful things.

Patience! Keep at it and you are bound to succeed.—Life

Sawze Sawze.

Here is the old King Richard I. way of making sausage—"Prygs in sawze sawze," or pry with sawze sawze. "Take prygs yekaldid (sawze) and quarter them and seeth them in water and salt; take them and le them kele (coole); take parcel (sawze); sawze (sawze) and grynde it with bread and yolkes of ayren (eggs) hard (roast) (boiled); temper it with vinegar some what thick, and lay the prygs in a vessel and seeth on (sawze) the same (sawze) and seeth it forth." "Take prygs" is pretty good. Size or number seems of no consequence.

Care With Mushrooms.

Mushrooms, because of the amount of nitrogen they contain, approach nearer to animal food than many of our vegetable products. An analysis shows that mushrooms contain 25 per cent protein, boiled potatoes 25 and onions 16. Experts say that mushrooms should be eaten perfectly fresh and never eaten after being "warmed over."

A NEW YORK LAWYER.

He Ran Afoul of King-ton Quarantine Rules at Station.

When a young boy bound for the Catskills alighted from a West Shore train at the union station Wednesday afternoon he was cautioned by the quarantine officer but insisted on going around the station. His desires in this direction were checked but not before a man, who said he was a New York lawyer, butted into the discussion and he said the boy could do as he liked. The officer had a contrary opinion and an acrimonious exchange followed before an interested crowd. The alleged lawyer had the police and health department on the phone but his criticisms were cut short by the pulling out of his train which he barely caught after expressing his opinion of precautions against the spread of disease.

BROWN'S DOG HAS HIS DAY.

Hanratty Street Canine Controversy Amicably Settled by Recorder.

The tail of a dog which wagged at the sight of its original owner, Paul Brown, a well known colored resident of Hanratty street, made up the burden of a moving tale told to Recorder Lang this morning when Brown gave his side of the trouble. The dog, a gift canine of uncertain pedigree, is a pup six months old and a short time ago disappeared.

The other day Brown happened to be passing the home of Mrs. Ellsworth on the same street where he resides and saw the animal. The recognition was mutual and so overcome with joy was the owner that he took his pet straight home. Mrs. Ellsworth complained to the police and Brown explained. He was permitted to go on his promise never to enter the Ellsworth yard again and not to let his dog stray away from his own premises.

BASEBALL OF BYGONE DAYS

Related by James Wood, Captain and Manager of the Famous White Stockings of 1870-71 to Frank G. Menke.

"Somewhere along about Christ-mas in 1869, I noticed an advertisement in a New York paper which read something as follows:

"Ball players wanted to form a team to represent Chicago and to defeat the Cincinnati Red Stockings."

"During the period of the late '60's and early '70's, there was keen rivalry between Chicago and Cincinnati in a commercial way. Chicago wasn't such a wonderfully large city then and it was doing everything possible to boom the town. And it was jealous of Cincinnati because of the great publicity Cincinnati had gained through the medium of its 1869 ball team had won 56 out of its 57 games, the other resulting in a 17 to 17 tie with the Union team of Lansingburg.

"And so Chicago decided that it must have a team to beat the Reds. Baseball wasn't played to any great extent in the Illinois metropolis prior to that time. All the crack players were in the East. That is why the advertisement appeared in New York.

"I answered the ad and in due time got a reply. It happened that I was among the first to write. The Chicago people told me they, under advice from Harry Wright, desired me to organize a club to beat the Red Stockings in 1870 and I—

"So I started to recruit my team. I figured the task would be easy, yet I found it the most difficult one of my life. Only a few of the many baseball stars that I approached cared to join a team that had as its ultimate purpose the beating of the Reds in a three game series.

"It can't be done," most of the players answered me. "Those Reds are unbeatable and we aren't going to waste all of next spring and summer practicing for it!"

"Finally after much persuasion, I signed up a number of men who were real players but only after I had advanced them money out of my own pocket. The Chicago people hadn't sent me any funds. Just as soon as some of those players had squandered their first advances money in drinking or gambling, they came for more, threatening to jump their contracts if we didn't 'come through.' Finally, when my advances totalled beyond $1,200 and the players kept demanding more, I asked my father to go to Chicago and ascertain the financial responsibility of the Chicagoans.

"Father wired back:

"Go the limit, Chicagoans will make good all your advances."

"When I got the message, I hurried to New York with Tom Foley, the representative of the Chicagoans, to get Fisher and Graves who had played in 1869 with the Troy Haymakers. Both were terrific hitters and I needed them but I knew they would come high, as salaries were in those days. However, we signed for $800 and Graves for $2,000. Then my team—eleven men—was complete.

"Early in the spring of 1870 we arranged the details of our training trip to New Orleans. It was the second southern trip ever undertaken by a ball club. Foley, who was a champion billiardist and one of the Chicago backers and is still living in Chicago, accompanied us south.

"During our first week in the Louisiana town we practiced among ourselves. Then we commenced to take on the teams in New Orleans. I began by scheduling the weakest first, working up gradually to the hardest. We defeated the weaker teams in New Orleans—and then we beat the strongest. In each succeeding game my club appeared stronger both in batting and in fielding. Toward the end of our season in New Orleans we played an all-star New Orleans nine and won with ease.

"Then I made the proposition that our regular nine should play a double team of New Orleans men, giving them 18 players in the field. The game itself was rather amusing because the New Orleans captain had many players under his command and he didn't know where to play them all. However, he put one man behind the plate to assist the catcher, four extras in the outfield, giving him seven altogether, and the rest were sprinkled around the infield, making a total of eight infielders.

"Pitted against such a collection we won almost as easily as we had in playing nine men. In our final game in New Orleans I allowed the rival team six outs per innings to our three—and once again we won.

"We worked our way north gradually, as the teams do today, playing all the crack southern teams enroute and winning all of our games by overwhelming scores. We beat the Memphis team, champions of Tennessee 157 to 1—and Foley was very angry because we had permitted the southerners to score their lone tally.

"At last we reached Chicago—and we got a wild ovation. The town had gone crazy over baseball. Our wonderful showing in New Orleans and our clean sweep through the south had caused the Chicagoans to feel that our chief aim—to defeat the Red Stockings—was a certainty.

"Our first real game in the north was against the crack Rockford, Ills. team—the club on which Adrian Anson and A. G. Spalding got their start. The Rockford people backed their team heavily in the betting that preceded that game—but we swamped them. We scored 14 runs in the first inning and after the fifth were so far ahead that I gave my boys orders to take it easy, and by that additional victory set Chicago further aflame with baseball enthusiasm.

"Then we started east to play out the schedule which was so arranged that the Cincinnati series did not come until the end of the season.

Our success continued. My boys were wonderful batters and every additional contest they engaged in seemed to increase their hitting power.

"In those days ability to hit was the main asset of a player. In his batting power lay his baseball value. Not much attention was paid to perfecting a team in fielding. It was feared that fielding would come naturally but that batting must be developed.

"During the latter part of May two of my players took sick while we were on tour and I had to send them home. Shortly afterward two others joined the 'hospital squad.' I filled in with amateurs, sent to me from Chicago, but I found quickly that they wouldn't do.

"So, about June 4th when I found that my ailing quartet was not convalescing very rapidly, I cancelled all our remaining June and July games and stayed in Chicago.

"Late in July when all the players were back in shape we resumed team playing practice. All during the time the four boys were sick I kept the others at batting practice for two hours a day and the expertness in the hitting line continued to increase. About August 4th we resumed our schedule and played out the season, winning all of our games from the resumption in August until the end.

"And then came the grand climax of the year—the task for which we had been preparing ourselves; the battle with the Cincinnati Red Stockings.

"As challengers we were compelled to play the first game of the series—a best two out of three affairs—on the home field where they never had tasted defeat. Only once during the two years—1869 and 1870—had the Reds been beaten and that was suffered on foreign territory. The Atlantics of Brooklyn, turned the trick in 10 innings, 8 to 7.

"It being necessary for the first game to be played in Cincinnati and the second in Chicago, the place for the third—if a third—was necessary to be determined by a flip of a coin.

"When we went to Cincinnati for that first game even our most loyal rooters were pessimistic. It was not that they lacked confidence in our ability, but because they feared we would be 'jobbed' by some Cincinnati umpire, or menaced so by the rowdy crowds that we wouldn't play our real game because of fear of violence if we should win.

"But we did win and the story of that game, together with the second in Chicago which was witnessed by a crowd beyond 50,000 shall form the next chapter in this recital."

End Chapter Four of "Baseball of the Bygone Days." (Note—Chapter five, which begins tomorrow, tells of the two most bitterly contested ball games in baseball history. I tell of a game that drew 50,000 spectators—the biggest crowd that ever saw a professional ball game in America.—Editor.)

The Red Sox made an auspicious start in their "crocial" series with the White Sox. They won both games of the double header. The first lasted 16 innings.

The victories over the White Sox and the Yankees victory over the Indians gave the Red Sox a 3½ game lead.

The Cubs had an easy time shutting out the Reds.

Today the Dodgers begin their western invasion. If they can hold their own with the Braves and Phillies they are liable to walk away with the batting.

The Dodgers have always been a poor road team and it is this fact that makes the Stallings and Moran men hopeful of overcoming the 3-game lead.

Accord, Aug. 17.—Ira Davenport is having a new guard rail put on the wall near his store. Osterhoudt and Chrissy are the carpenters.

Herman Gazlay entered the local hall of fame one day last week by running an automobile backwards from Thomas Connor's to Anderson's mill, a distance of about a mile and a half. He did not do it willingly, but only because that was the only way the contrary Ford would run.

Two Whitfield young men also gained local distinction by the way they outwitted a game protector while fishing in the Rondout creek at this place. According to the story as we hear it, the boys were in a boat and the official on the bank. Mr. Protector invited the boys to disembark, but they said, "No, thank you," and departed to the other side; whereupon the "protector" endeavored to execute a flank movement by going over the iron bridge and through Slater & Yeaple's partnership garden. However, the boys eluded him and went on their way rejoicing. Slater & Yeaple are much concerned over the damage done to their vegetables and think that the game protector ought to reimburse them.

Richard Warren's horse got frightened while standing near Mrs. A. A. Lester's house Tuesday and tried to climb a steep bank. After damaging the wagon quite a little he broke loose but was soon caught. No one was in the wagon at the time.

ter, who also won first prize for the best decorated five-passenger automobile. The car was a dreamy creation of white, decorated with clusters of wisteria, and its five young lady occupants were gowned in white and wore purple hats.

Special prizes in the five-passenger automobile class were awarded to Mrs. R. L. Moffitt, whose car was decorated with stalks of white and red hollyhocks, the car also being lined and covered with green; and to Mrs. H. Westlake Coons, whose car was decorated with red hollyhocks. Miss Helen B. Holman was awarded first prize for the best decorated Society automobile, her car being covered with flowered cretonne and decorated with pink roses. Her car was entered for the Woman's Suffrage organization.

Miss Bradford won first prize for the best decorated three-passenger car, her car being decorated with white roses and yellow chrysanthemums, intertwined with green leaves and two white doves surmounting the windshield with streamers from their bills leading to the front fenders.

Dr. L. E. Vernon won first prize for the best decorated two-passenger automobile, with decorations of pink roses against a white background.

Miss Harriet Bradford won first prize for the most grotesque automobile, the prize-winning car being slightly damaged and bent but decorated excessively with red poppies, yellow chrysanthemums, purple morning glories and sunflowers.

Business Automobiles.

The first prize for the business class was awarded to the Ellenville Electric Light Company, whose representation was a huge electric smoothing-iron of white and gold.

The second prize in this class was awarded to the Hillside Dairy Farm, for its white and green colored dairy house, surmounted by large, clean milk bottles.

Scoreless Truck Wins Prize.

Scoreless Hose Company's modern up to date fire truck won first prize for the best decorated firemen's apparatus. The decorations were of red roses. After receiving the prize, the wagon returned to the hose house to be ready in case it should be called out.

Captain Jack Crawford Led Parade.

Captain Jack Crawford, who shares honors with Buffalo Bill as an Indian fighter, led the parade. The captain is spending the summer at Yonkers and has long experience on the plains requires that he continue horseback riding in order to keep his health. He is a picturesque figure, with long hair which streams behind him in a way that ought to create envy in the heart of any Indian whose ancestors looked longingly at the white man's scalplock. The captain wore his plain suit of buckskin, trimmed with leather fringe, and the ovation he received from the crowd was fully warranted by his reputation and appearance. The announcements of prize winners were made by the Rev. Mr. Steiner of Mount Kisco, N. Y., formerly of Ellenville, who is spending his vacation in Ulster county.

Mrs. Katherine Davis Spoke.

Mrs. Katherine Davis, who is at the head of the New York city parole board and formerly was connected with the Department of Charities, delivered an address before the floral parade on the subject of Woman Suffrage. She is an ardent suffragette and is an excellent talker. Prior to the address she was entertained at lunch by Miss Lora DeVany, daughter of Lawyer John R. DeVany, who is engaged in charitable and philanthropic work in New York city, and after the address she was driven to the Eastern New York Reformatory, where she was the guest of Warden George Deyo. Later she came to Kingston with Mrs. John W. Searing and returned to New York city in the early evening.

Mrs. Davis spoke from the judge's stand to a large crowd. She was introduced by Captain Crawford, who believes that women should vote. Mrs. Davis said that Captain Crawford was not alone in that class, as the movement had gained such headway that not only the minor parties but the two leading political parties as well had included planks declaring for suffrage in their national platforms. Government, she said, meant simply that the people selected certain individuals to bring
